FRANKLIN AUGUSTUS
FRAUGHTON AND JULIETTE
MOTT

Franklin Augustus Fraughton was born January 31, 1846, at Westfield, Chautauqua County, New York, son of George Fraughton and Henrietta Case. On August 12, 1867, he married Juliette Mott, daughter of Daniel Richmond Mott and Elizabeth Ghram. Juliette was born February 12, 1852, at Decatur, Green County, Wisconsin. Juliette died June 11, 1918, and Franklin died May 5, 1929, in Wallsburg, and is buried in Heber. After Juliette died he married Lena K. (Keeler), born January 31, 1864. She died August 27, 1939.

Although young, Franklin soon learned to assume responsibility and helped his parents in any way he could. At the age of six he journeyed with his family to Montreal Town, Canada, to visit his father's parents, Augustus and Margaret Corpron (or Cochran) Fraughton. While there, Frank's father became ill and because of this their stay in Canada was prolonged for two years. When his father recovered he worked at the sawmill, logged on the St. Lawrence River and cleared land 24 miles above the mouth of the river at Montreal town.

There were also the legal problems related to justice and the suppression of crime. Business licenses and franchise also had to be granted, and liquor control had to be enforced. For a period, also, the selectmen had responsibilities for directing the school precincts and the superintendent.

Statehood in 1896 brought a full county commission organization, with John Clyde, Isaac O. Wall and Wilford Van Wagoner selected as the first commissioners.

Salaries for those first selected included $100 a year for commissioners; $650 per year for the sheriff; $500 per year for the clerk, with the recorder receiving $200 per year, the surveyor $100 per year and the county superintendent of schools $360 per year.

Those who have served as commissioners through the years have included the following: 1897, Wilford Van Wagoner, Thomas Clotworthy, William Daybell. 1899, Thomas Clotworthy, Isaac O. Wall and Richard Jones. 1901, Henry Clift, A. M. Murdock, Henry T. Coleman. 1903, John E. Austin, F. A. Fraughton, Henry T. Coleman. 1905, John E. Austin, F. A. Henrietta joined the LDS Church in 1841. George joining in 1844, and then had a great desire to come to Utah, where their children could be with people of their faith.

They came to Utah on August 31, 1854, where they first settled in Provo and remained five years. They then moved to Heber, Wasatch County, in 1860, and were among the first settlers, and their children were reared here.

Just prior to Frank and Juliette's marriage he assisted in bringing immigrants to Utah in 1866. He also was a scout in the Blackhawk War.

Frank and Juliette were not blessed with a family of their own, but were privileged to rear Juliette's sister's children after she died. This family, children of Heber Taylor Sr., were: Heber, Juliet, Persey, Jessie, and Ruth.

Frank held many responsible positions in the Church and community and both he and his wife were loved and respected by those who knew and worked with them.

From 1885 to 1887, Frank was called to serve a mission to the Southern States. While serving on this mission an angry mob persecuting the Mormons took him from a convert's home into a nearby woods, where they severely whipped him with braided hickory sapling whips. Then they tarred and feathered him and left him to die. A Creighton was his companion. He was shot in the chin. The people he was staying with found him and nursed him back to health.

Frank was bishop of Wallsburg Ward 17 years, 1887-1903. In 1907 he was again called to serve as an LDS missionary in the Northern States. After returning from this mission he held many other important positions in the Church. In 1911 he was first counselor to Bishop Fullmer in the Wallsburg Ward. He was president of the 76th Quorum of Seventy and a high councilman. He left a sizable amount of money to be used for genealogy work.

Frank's main occupations were farming, stock raising and lumbering. He also served as Wasatch County commissioner two years.

Frank was a kind, patient, refined and mild-mannered man. He always gave good counsel and encouragement to both the young and old. Juliette was a gracious woman and kept a well-managed home. She was a very good seamstress, often making temple clothes and embroidering temple aprons.

Conn. To this union seven children were born. They also reared George's sister's daughter Mary. She was the daughter of Mary Lucy Fraughton and Charles Green. Mary Green married James Nash. Henrietta died October 29, 1878, at Heber City, and is buried there.

George and Henrietta had lived at different times in New York and Connecticut. About 1852 they went to Canada to visit George's parents. They stayed in Canada two years and while there he worked up the St. Lawrence River, logging and clearing land 24 miles above the river's mouth, at Montreal.

While at New York they had joined the LDS Church. Henrietta was baptized in 1841 and George was baptized in 1844 by L. D. Rimpbell. This was against their parents' will. They left Canada and came to Utah on August 3, 1854, in the James Ivy company, to be with people of their own faith.

They first settled in Provo, Utah County, living there five years. Then they moved to Heber City, Wasatch County, in 1860 and were among some of the first settlers of that county. Here the family of George and Henrietta Case Fraughton were reared. Their children, Frank and George Homer Fraughton, and Floretta Fraughton Ryan were life-long residents of Wasatch County.

Henry Fraughton and family moved to Woodland, Summit County. Almyra Fraughton Mitchell and Melissa Fraughton Eskelson moved to Francis, Summit County. At that time, Woodland and Francis belonged to Wasatch County.

George was a Blackhawk Indian war veteran. He assisted in bringing immigrants to Utah.

He was a Seventy, being ordained May 23, 1857, by J. Riggs. He was ordained a High Priest August 19, 1861, by William M. Wall.

On December 1, 1862, George married Mary Jane Sympson, who was born June 22, 1839, at San Francisco, Missouri, daughter of Thurston Sympson and Mary Sophia Barleen. They lived at Heber until about 1867 or 1868. Then they moved to Woodland, Utah. To this union eight children were born. They later moved to Vernal, Utah. At one time George was Sunday School superintendent of one of the Vernal wards. His occupation was farming. He died at Vernal August 9, 1905.

George and Henrietta Case Fraughton's children: Edatha, Franklin Augustus, Floretta Marcena, Henry Erastus, George Homer, Almyra Adelaide and Melissa Orella.

WILLIAM PRICE FULLMER AND FANNIE VERONA WHITING

William Price Fullmer Jr. was born in Springville, Utah, on November 10, 1871, to William Price Fullmer Sr. and Maria Jane Curtis. He married Fannie Verona Whiting in the Manti Temple on January 15, 1896. Fannie was born October 27, 1877, to Albert Milton Whiting and Harriet Susanna Perry, in Mapleton, Utah. William died August 28, 1933, and Fannie died April 4, 1959.

Shortly after their marriage they moved to Hobbie Creek Canyon, where William farmed and had a sawmill. On March 13, 1903, they moved to Wallsburg.

In 1910, Mr. Fullmer was called on a mission to the Southern States. Twin girls were born to them three months before he left, but they died at birth. Fannie was left with eight children to care for. The oldest was 13 years old. They lived on the rent from the farm and the six cows they milked. In summer, Fannie and the oldest children thinned and topped beets.

Mr. Fullmer was called home in November, 1911, to be bishop of the Wallsburg Ward. He built a new meeting house, with the help of the ward members. He had raised the first sugar beets in Wallsburg. Those were the horse-and-buggy days. Fannie was hostess to all the stake authorities who visited the ward. Also, Mr. A. O. Wiltaker, a music teacher whom she entertained once a week in her home so he could give music lessons to the children of the valley, for Bishop Fullmer felt the need for better music in the ward.
